Supplement 1. Layout of the SDCS questionnaire.

This is an example of the design of the SDCS questionnaire showing the item regarding situations, thoughts, and feelings on the left. The response regarding the frequency of these situation, thoughts, and feelings is in the middle, and the response regarding how much stress these situations create is on the far right in the questionnaire. To the left in the picture below, is the original Swedish version used for this study, and to the right a translated English section to illustrate the layout. Missing data was mostly connected to the question about the level of stress on the right-hand side of the questionnaire.
