

1. Radio:

More men than women were said to have better access to health information delivered through the radio

3. Posters and brochures:

Benefited men more than women because more women than men were said to be illiterate)

2. Television:

Never reached the study community because no one owned a television set

4. Road shows:

Never occurred in the study area

5. Newspapers:

Could not reach the study community, costly and pegged on literacy and high levels of education
