Additional file 9 TICD Worksheet 5: reporting of determinants

In worksheet 5 we suggest a structure for reporting determinants of practice in research reports that includes which factors were considered (those in the checklist and any additional ones), which ones were investigated and a reference to a report of the investigation (or a report of the methods that were used), how the factors were prioritised, and a table summarising the main factors, their likely impacts and the evidence supporting that judgement.

Suggested structure for reporting determinants of practice in research reports:

- 1. The checklist that was used to identify potential determinants + a reference to the checklist
- 2. The determinants that were investigated + a reference to a report of the investigation
- 3. How the determinants were prioritised and a table summarising the prioritised determinants

Determinant (barrier or facilitator)	Recommendation(s) for which the determinant is relevant	Likely impact of the determinant	Evidence (of the presence of the determinant and its likely impact on adherence)
